“Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex.”

Last February, the Virginia House of Delegates was ONE VOTE SHORT of ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment.

The Equal Rights Amendment: A Simple Guide

What is the ERA?

“Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.”

The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) is an amendment to the U.S. Constitution to prohibit discrimination on the basis of sex. The United States is the only major nation with a constitution that does not guarantee gender equality. The ERA will correct this historical exclusion.

The ERA was approved by Congress on March 22, 1972, and sent to the states for ratification.

Only 35 state legislatures ratified the ERA between 1972 and 1982, three states short of the necessary three-fourths (38) required for the Amendment to become law.

On March 22, 2017 and May 30, 2018, Nevada and Illinois became the 36th and 37th states, respectively, to ratify the ERA.

Only one more state is needed for ratification of the ERA and ensure gender equality under the law – Virginia should be that state!

Gender discrimination causes significant harm to individuals, our communities, and society.
